Why most PR fails, and what I do differently.

Most Web3 and AI founders have already been burned by PR once. The pattern is familiar:

- Cold press-release distribution. It gets ignored. Editors filter it before they read it.
- Generic agencies. They recycle the same playbook they use for fintech and ecommerce, then hand the account to a junior team.
- No track record. The same teams that promise you Forbes have never placed a single token launch.

That's why I built something different: one senior operator who leads strategy and execution personally, with direct relationships in every market that matters for your launch.

“I don't pitch products. I pitch inevitabilities — the kind of stories that connect and editors save for Monday morning.”

SHILIKA JAIN

Six years putting Web3 & AI founders on the front page.

I'm Shilika Jain, a PR consultant for Web3, crypto and AI companies. I've led PR for Gaia AI, CoinMarketCap, Polygon and 50+ more.

I built CoinMarketCap's regional comms function from the ground up, including relationships with 100+ journalists and 150+ KOLs, and the muscle memory that only comes from shipping launches every week. I currently lead PR at Myosin, a growth-marketing DAO.

Across both roles I've shaped narratives for NEAR Foundation, Ripple, MANTRA Chain, RARI Foundation, Web3Auth, Fluence, Gaia AI, Stellar, Polygon, Solana Saga and many others, and placed them in Forbes, CoinDesk, Cointelegraph, Decrypt, The Block, Blockworks and AI Magazine. Asia to the States.

In the age of AI, attention is cheap. Credibility isn't.

Buyers, partners and investors no longer just Google you. They ask ChatGPT and Perplexity about you, and those models answer from earned media, not from your homepage.

1. Everyone claims “AI-powered”

Demos are cheap and launches are weekly. Earned coverage is proof that someone with no stake in your business vouched for you. A journalist who chose your story is a third-party endorsement; an ad or a sponsored post is you talking about yourself.

2. AI answers are the new front page

ChatGPT, Perplexity, Gemini, Claude and Google AI Overviews learn who you are from high-authority coverage. Without earned media, the model either ignores you or makes it up. An Ahrefs study of roughly 75,000 brands found branded media mentions correlate with visibility in AI answers at 0.66, against 0.33 for Domain Rating and 0.22 for backlinks. Being talked about beats backlinks three to one. PR is now an AI-distribution channel.

3. Investors diligence in public

Before any meeting, investors search you on Google, ChatGPT and X. What's written about you and your founders is the first data room, long before the real one opens. If a raise is anywhere on your roadmap, founder profiling is the highest-leverage PR you can do.

Organic first, paid only when it helps

Organic coverage is hard: an editor has to choose your story. That's exactly why it carries credibility. Paid coverage is easy: you pay, it publishes within a week, it's labelled “sponsored”, and readers, journalists and AI models discount it accordingly. I work organic-first, and build paid media strategies only when you need to fast-track coverage, quoted transparently per outlet.

Most newly funded Web3 and AI startups go from zero AI citations to 8–15 inside one quarter when the schema, content and PR layers run together.

Crypto PR, token launch PR & AI startup PR — without the agency markup.

Eight services, all run by the same senior operator. Most engagements combine two or three of them around a launch, a raise or a category push.

01

Web3 PR Campaigns

End-to-end narrative architecture: positioning thesis, embargo strategy, tier-1 journalist outreach (Forbes, CoinDesk, Cointelegraph, Decrypt, The Block, Blockworks), KOL waves, crisis and depeg communications, APAC localisation, sentiment reporting and AEO.

Six case studies: stories on the front page.

Each campaign below had a hard problem: a technical product, a commodity announcement, or a category editors didn't cover yet. The lesson from each is how the story was framed, not just where it landed.

DECENTRALIZED AI · 2024-25

Gaia AI

Forbes

"The Stripe for AI agents"

THE CHALLENGE

Decentralized AI infrastructure — a hard, technical story, in a market where every startup claims to be "AI-powered".

WHAT WE DID

Profiled both founders (CEO and COO) in parallel to double the surface area for podcasts, commentary and interviews, and built a 6-podcast founder tour timed to Consensus Hong Kong 2025.

RESULT

14 earned placements and interviews in four months: a Forbes feature, a Decrypt deep-dive on living knowledge systems for AI agents, a Benzinga interview with co-founder Shashank Sripada, CryptoDaily UK and Binance Square.

THE LESSON

Start with founder commentary; it compounds into features, and by month four outlets are open to the company's key announcements.

NFT INFRASTRUCTURE · MAINNET · JAN 2024

RARI Foundation

11 in 24h

Simultaneous tier-1 placements

THE CHALLENGE

Launch RARI Chain on Arbitrum globally in a news cycle crowded with L2 launches.

WHAT WE DID

Framed it as royalty enforcement, not "another L2". Ran a 9-day CoinDesk embargo, then lifted it at 9 AM ET across all outlets, with coordinated Korean, Japanese and Chinese translations.

RESULT

11 simultaneous tier-1 placements — The Block, The Defiant, Cointelegraph, CryptoNews, Decrypt, NFTNow — plus 10+ regional APAC outlets.

THE LESSON

Category framing decides whether a launch is news.

MANTRA Chain

$11M

Raise turned category story

THE CHALLENGE

A Series A is a commodity announcement. Tier-1 desks see dozens a week.

WHAT WE DID

Reframed it as a Middle East RWA story, anchored on Abu Dhabi-based lead investor Shorooq Partners and a live MENA regulatory beat.

RESULT

A CoinDesk exclusive, re-reported across Decrypt, CryptoPotato, CryptoDaily and Milk Road — plus a standalone Cointelegraph profile of CEO John Mullin, “Everything Tokenized”.

THE LESSON

One announcement, two assets: a news hit and a durable founder profile.

Fluence Network

DePIN

Made a tier-1 beat

THE CHALLENGE

Turn DePIN — an acronym most crypto editors didn't yet treat as a beat — into a publishable category, and make co-founder Tom Trowbridge its go-to voice.

WHAT WE DID

One acronym, company news kept separate from category thinking, a multi-quarter cadence, and every conversation hooked to a live event.

RESULT

A CoinDesk Opinion byline (“Not a Meme: DePIN Can Take Crypto Mainstream”), a Cointelegraph “Hashing It Out” feature, Decrypt analysis, a Benzinga exclusive, and an e27 piece tying DePIN to the 2024 global Microsoft outage.

Web3Auth

4 languages

Google Cloud × Firebase story

THE CHALLENGE

A developer release — a wallet extension on the Firebase Extensions Hub — with no funding hook and no token. The kind of news tier-1 desks don't cover.

WHAT WE DID

Made the partner brand the headline noun, translated capability into outcome, pre-built verifiable proof, and briefed a tiered outlet list for one day.

RESULT

Blockworks, CoinDesk (Protocol newsletter), Benzinga, Cointelegraph and Yahoo Finance, then syndicated into French, Italian and Spanish markets.

Bullieverse

$4M

Economic Times exclusive

THE CHALLENGE

An India-founded Web3 gaming studio announcing a seed round to two very different audiences.

WHAT WE DID

Led with a home-market exclusive, then ran two parallel press tracks off one fact sheet, each with its own native framing, timed to one news cycle.

RESULT

Economic Times exclusive, then Inc42, YourStory, Business Today and Tech in Asia on the mainstream track, and NewsBTC and a HackerNoon founder interview on the crypto-native track.

Fractional PR vs a Web3 PR agency

A fractional PR manager runs the full PR function on a part-time retainer instead of an agency contract: embedded like a team member, for a fraction of an agency retainer.

TYPICAL AGENCY		WORKING WITH SHILIKA
WHO DOES THE WORK	Junior account team; senior partner on the sales call	One senior operator, strategy and execution
FOUNDER ACCESS	Filtered through account managers	Direct
PLAYBOOK	Recycled from fintech and ecommerce	Built for Web3, AI and APAC
REGIONAL REACH	English-only, or a separate agency per market	Native placements in 6 APAC markets + MENA
PLACEMENTS	Markup on paid media	Organic-first; paid quoted transparently
ACCOUNTABILITY	Billable hours	Coverage in named outlets, reported weekly

Ways to work together.

One retainer, scoped by cadence, markets and founder-profiling depth. Launches and content can be added on or bought on their own.

MONTHLY RETAINER $3k–7k /month Fractional PR, scoped to your cadence and markets. → Narrative architecture & 90-day calendar → Tier-1 and regional media outreach → Founder profiling, podcasts, commentary → Weekly reporting & share of voice	LAUNCH SPRINT Custom quote Token launch, mainnet, raise or product launch. → Pre-launch positioning & embargo strategy → Exchange & partner comms → Segmented KOL waves → 90-day post-launch tail	CONTENT WRITING $2.5k /month + Ghostwritten under the founder's byline. → Op-Ed of the Month · $2,500/mo (3-month min.) → Founder Essay · $3,500–7,500 → Whitepaper Sprint · $7,500–20,000
---	---	--

- Organic-first. Paid placements are an optional add-on, quoted transparently per outlet, with no markup.
- APAC markets get custom plans, from a single-market launch to always-on regional coverage.
- KOL budgets are passed through at creator rates; every creator is vetted and fraud-audited before contract.

What founders say after the dust settles.

“When Shilika speaks, journalists listen. Her ability to translate client briefs into earned media is unmatched in our industry. Shilika combines her knowledge of technology, skills in newsjacking and values of communicating courageously and with honesty. If you're lucky enough to work with her, clear the runway and let her fly.”

SIMON YI · MANAGED SHILIKA DIRECTLY

“At Fluence, she led PR efforts with remarkable success — securing high-quality, organic media coverage that allowed the company to punch well above its weight. In an ecosystem often dominated by hype and inflated narratives, Shilika cuts through the noise with thoughtful, realistic, and highly effective communication strategies.”

ALEX ALBANO · CMO / CHIEF GROWTH OFFICER · EX-GOOGLE CLOUD

“What sets her apart is a deep, genuine understanding of blockchain — not just the buzzwords. Her network is outstanding. Outlets that once felt out of reach became regular coverage, both in crypto and mainstream tech media.”

GAFOOR KHAN · CLIENT · WEB3 & AI ADVISOR AND ANGEL INVESTOR

“She has a sharp instinct for shaping compelling narratives and crafting PR strategies that align seamlessly with broader business goals. Whether it was pitching top-tier outlets or navigating fast-moving news cycles, Shilika was always on point.”

JANA BERTRAM · CLIENT · EX-RARI FOUNDATION, WETRANSFER, KLARNA

“She has been a huge help in increasing Reown and WalletConnect leadership's presence by securing podcast features, interviews, and media opportunities.”

AARON DODD · CLIENT · WALLETCONNECT / REOWN

“One of the most impressive PR experts I've worked with. She deeply understands her clients, knows how to craft narratives that genuinely land and brings a rare mix of strategic thinking and relentless execution.”

NICOLE ROCHETTE · WEB3 BD · FCMO · EX-DAPPER LABS

“A top tier PR operator. She gets things done and hustles to make sure to get the best press coverage possible — and when the client doesn't have their house in order, she works closely with them to help them get there faster.”

BLAKE MINHO KIM · CO-FOUNDER, MYOSIN

“One of the best PR specialists you could ever find on the market, with deep understanding of web3 and media landscape, strong connections with journalists and a proactive approach.”

MASHA VYAZEMSKAYA · CLIENT · RARI FOUNDATION & FLUENCE

Questions founders ask before booking.

What does a fractional PR manager do for a Web3 or AI startup?

Runs the full PR function on a part-time retainer instead of an agency contract: narrative, embargoed press, founder profiling, KOL waves, APAC localisation and launch comms. Founder access is direct, and accountability is tied to placements in named outlets rather than billable hours.

Which Tier-1 publications have you placed clients in?

Forbes, CoinDesk, Cointelegraph, Decrypt, The Block, Blockworks, Bitcoin Magazine, Benzinga, Yahoo Finance, AI Magazine, The Defiant, CryptoSlate, CryptoNews, CryptoPotato and CryptoDaily globally. Regionally: BloomingBit, TokenPost and Coinness in Korea; CryptoTimes JP and Coinpost in Japan; ChainCatcher and Jinse for Greater China; Inc42, e27 and Economic Times for India and SEA.

How do I get featured in CoinDesk or Cointelegraph?

Lead with a category-level story, not a funding or launch announcement. Map the right reporter on the desk that covers your space, write an under-180-word pitch with a dated news peg, and offer a real embargo confirmed in writing 7 to 10 days out.

Do you handle AI startups outside of crypto?

Yes. The same playbook — category narrative, founder profiling, journalist mapping, podcast tours, op-ed ghostwriting — applies whether or not the company is on-chain. AI Magazine, Forbes AI coverage, The Information and category-defining op-eds are the typical surface area.

How do you build AI-search visibility for a startup with no Google presence?

Start with the entity, not the keyword: schema-marked founder and organisation profiles, named-source PR placements that ChatGPT, Perplexity, Claude and Gemini already cite, FAQ content that answers the exact buyer question, and a 90-day citation panel to measure which engines pick the brand up.

Which regions do you cover?

Korea, Japan, Vietnam, China, Singapore, India and the UAE, plus global English-language press. Each market gets native-language placements, regional KOL waves and on-ground access at Korea Blockchain Week, Token2049 Singapore and Dubai, Japan Blockchain Week and ETHIndia.

How do we start?

Book a 30-minute teardown. Bring your roadmap, your funding stage and the one publication you want to be in. You leave with a scoped plan and an honest read on whether fractional PR is the right call — or whether an agency or in-house hire is a better fit. No agency-style sales process.

Have a launch on the horizon?

Let's plot it.

Book a 30-minute intro call. I'll come prepped with a teardown of your current press footprint and map how to move ahead before you commit to anything.
